

FOOTWEAR BY FEEDING THEM

BERKELEY, Cal., June 8. (By Associated Press.)—Dr. J. H. Larsson, a Swedish physician, is restoring youth with an operation to restore the vigor of youth when a process of feeding the thyroid glands and restoring the vigor of youth.

Going to Paris, Larsson transferred money to his patients, and the San Antonio physician who transplanted the intestinal glands of dead men to live ones, better, the first physician in the United States to boast a degree of doctor of philosophy has started the world of science with new discoveries of the possibility of glandular treatment in rejuvenating men and women.

Dr. Larsson's discoveries were not made while seeking the fountain of youth, however. He is endeavoring to find a cure for cancer in the thyroid gland, which is moving in the right direction.

Through his researches he expects to reveal the cause of cancer in the thyroid gland, which is moving in the right direction.

In his experiments, conducted at the University of California, Larsson treated two major glands in the human body, the thyroid, which connects with the brain, and the thyroid, which is located in the lower part of the neck. His experiments conclusively proved that the latter gland could be eliminated and human life continue with greater advantage. In many instances, through the feeding of the brain-connecting gland, Larsson proved also that by feeding the hypophysis, not only did a larger and better developed brain result, but that a general growth of the body followed. More than 200 rats were used by Larsson in experiments continuing over almost a year, the results being selected because of their similarity in organism to the human system.

"While it is proven conclusively that a more highly developed brain and body has resulted from the feeding of the gland in question," said Larsson, "I am not guaranteeing the same results in humans, although it is more than likely that they would be the same."

Reasoning along the same line, it is probable also that mental defects in a human being could be overcome in the same way and a normal, healthy person made of a weakling, provided, of course, there is only a mental situation that needs correction. Larsson expected that the results will cure all the human ills at once.

That mental defects result readily to the experiments that females, Larsson declared was shown in his experiments. A larger growth resulting in the subjects than the latter. Patients that had one of the glands exterminated and were kept in a hospital for a longer period of time than those with both glands fed in the same manner, disclosed Larsson that the subjects who had been operated on had a more rapid pace than did those with both glands fed in the same manner, disclosed Larsson that the subjects who had been operated on had a more rapid pace than did those with both glands fed in the same manner.

Larsson's glandular experiments follow startling disclosures made by him in the world of criminology by which he is able not only to establish identification by a single fingerprint, but to identify the race and color of an individual as well. He recently completed investigations that enabled him to establish connecting links between members of the same family through their fingerprints.

Larsson is 27 years old and a graduate of Boston university, residing in Berkeley with his wife and two children. He has been supporting through all of his studies.
